

Dead Man Found In Quarry

Victim Shot,
Chained To
Concrete Blocks
At Dickerson

The body of an unidentified man - killed by a close ranged shotgun blast and chained to cinder blocks - was recovered Tuesday afternoon from the Dickerson quarry.

Montgomery County police said the body had been in the quarry for several days before it was found at 3 p.m. Tuesday. No identification was found on the man, however, several tattoos were on his arms.

One of the tattoos depicted a "winged double barreled shotgun with the No. 13 inscribed on top and the initials S. G. underneath." This tattoo was located on the left arm. On the right forearm, a banner with a nazi cross was shown and above the banner, on the upper arm, a spider was depicted.

Two cinder blocks were chained around the man's ankles and apparently held him under water for several days until enough gasses were produced in the body to float the man to the surface, police said.

The man was killed at close range by a shotgun blast in the chest, homicide detectives in Montgomery County said.

The man is approximately 20 to 30 years old, white male, weighed about 190 to 210 pounds, had brown hair and a full beard, was wearing a blue short sleeve shirt with jeans and the word "HUN" written on the left upper leg.

The body was recovered by police after persons had reported seeing it floating in the quarry near Dickerson. Police ask that anyone who may have known the deceased to contact detectives at 949-4782 in Montgomery County.
